Hi Nick

I had another concern brought to my attention today around Fire Safety considering a fire broke out a storage facility in the Northern Beaches. My question is, who will be checking the contents to ensure there is nothing flammable or hazardous being left in the storage facility and/or no illegal activity with flammable contents will be actively used within the storage facility.

Considering there are roughly 300~ storage units so close to the residential and commercial buildings how will it be maintained, If this type of fire broke out will the smoke and fire be contained in the building?

The below article today where a northern beaches facility was on fire rang alarm bells for me as the facility is right next door to my house and a school. What precautions will be taken that this does not happen next to my house!!
