This is a submission from a local resident about the Collaroy Beach Sea Wall.

I walk along that stretch of sand almost every day, and since this monstrosity has been erected, not only have the aesthetics of this beautiful beach been decimated, the sand has become like quicksand, and walking along that stretch of beach is very dangerous at high tide.

There was not enough clear concise information given to the public re this vertical wall. It is ugly, takes away from the beach and benefits nobody but a few entitled residents, who have quickly made personal use of the extra level land they have obtained after the wall was constructed. And those residents do not welcome any hapless people who climb the wall stairs - they are quickly told that they are trespassing on private land.

Thank you
