I wish to add my total disapproval and objection to the further building of vertical concrete sea wall along South Narrabeen / Narrabeen beach. As has been pointed out in the other many objections you have received. A vertical concrete seawall is not the answer, which will be proven when the 1st big storm arrives and washes all the sand away making it impossible for the public to walk the full length of the Collaroy Narrabeen beach safely. Rock revetment is a better solution to dissipate the wave energy, not simply reflect it back out to sea, taking the beach with it not to return for the public to use for possibly years later if at all. Who is going to pay to remove graffiti from the wall? The 1st section has been a PA disaster for the Northern Beaches Council and with Council elections coming up, don't make the same mistake twice.
