RE: DA2017/1274 - 52 Cabbage Tree Road BAYVIEW NSW 2104

Having lived at Whale Beach - I can attest that the only attractive part of the northern beaches is the natural beauty, not the built environment. I simply don't understand the juxtaposition of building hideous buildings in an area people want to live because of its now previous natural beauty. I have never understood the point of destroying the very reason of living in an environment in the first place? So many areas have become built up and become completely unattractive. Some people don't want a built environment and others do. Build up more buildings in an already built environment - and leave the minimal pockets of natural beauty alone before we end up with nothing. (look at a map and do the math, this scarily points out the minute amount of natural bushland we have left). Imagine if we started planting (extensive) bushland in the city! What an uproar! Also, we are attempting to build natural environments in the city (rooftops) - why do you think that is? Please just STOP building in natural corridors...!!!

It's like eating a box of chocolates. Take one, take another, no-one will notice.... OK, I'll take the top row only... We get to the point without realising, we have eaten the entire box and justified it to ourselves as we've gone. Others won't see it that way.....
