Comments	I am convinced that the exemption for trees "3 metres or less from a building" should read " 3 metres +THE HEIGHT OF THE TREE or less from a building". If a 10 metre tall tree is to fall towards a building it will cause damage if it is, say 2.5 away or,say 8 metres away. So to avoid building damage from falling trees, they must be at least the height of the tree away plus a margin, say 3 metres. I trust the logic of this is apparent. Yours sincerely, Max Boyd
